

Kimberly Martin, DO, MPH is an assistant professor of pediatrics at the University Of Oklahoma School of Community Medicine, Tulsa, Oklahoma. She completed her residency at Arkansas Children’s Hospital and fellowship at Children’s National Medical Center in Washington, DC with research at the Food and Drug Administration. She received a Masters in Public Health with a focus in epidemiology from the Milken Institute School of Public Health at The George Washington University. Dr. Martin received her Doctor of Osteopathic Medical degree from the University of North Texas Health Science Center in Fort Worth, Texas in 2008. She is certified by the American Board of Medical Specialties in Pediatrics and Pediatric Infectious Diseases.