

Keli Hawthorne, MS, RD, is a Registered Dietitian and the Director for Clinical Research for the Department of Pediatrics at the Dell Medical School at the University of Texas at Austin. Keli is also the Co-Director of the Dell Med School Culinary Medicine program which teaches residents and fellows about healthy cooking techniques and nutrition in order for them to personally increase their own knowledge as well as apply these skills when speaking to future patients.

Keli's research background focuses on neonatal and pediatric nutrition, including mineral absorption, intestinal failure, and human milk fortification for premature infants. She was honored with the Texas Distinguished Scientist Award from the Texas Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics and is a past recipient of the Emerging Dietetic Leader Award and Recognized Young Dietitian of the Year. When Keli is not in Austin, she can be found at her cattle ranch in Chalk Mountain, TX.