

Mark Cleveland is a 34-year law enforcement veteran (26 full-time, eight part-time). Mark's service to the community and country dates beyond his law-enforcement career. He served several years in the U.S. Navy. In 2009, he retired from the Owasso Police Department, acknowledged as the department's firearms expert and one of the most decorated officers in their history.

As the retired Chief of Police in Verdigris, Oklahoma, Mr. Cleveland dedicates himself to training others in how to survive active shooter attacks.
